

The Traders Bank ;Bridgeburg. 1905

It is now between two and three years since the local branch of The Traders Bank of Canada was established in our village. Previous to that time the merchants and the citizens had been put to the necessity and the inconvenience of going out of town in order to do business with a chartered bank. It is a matter for congratulation that, in getting a bank located here the village secured a branch of a large and strong institution; one managed along conservative lines of safe Canadian banking. By their unfailing courtesy and strict attention to business the manager and staff of the Bank, have made themselves popular with the public and this section. Manager Ward believes that the Bank can be made a convenience to everybody; the doors are open for business every lawful day of the year, and if it is only to send a money order or to leave a sum of money for awhile, instead of keeping it in the house the bank extends its facilities to all.

People have found it safe and convenient to do their banking with the Traders Bank; and that is the reason the business has prospered so largely at this point.
