After he left came Mr. Seese, followed by Joseph Bauer in 1871. In 1910 the hotel was sold to Andrew Willick who remained till Sept. 1948. He sold to Mr. Andy Zuba. From Zuba the hotel went to Rodger and Anna Featherstone and John Mikitchuk, all from Hamilton. They took over Feb. 1974.

TAVERNS & BOARDING HOUSE in Greater Fort Erie: no longer seen

1812: Mother Palmer's: Military reserve by old fort, on Lakeshore.

1820's. Circa. Canada House: S.w. cr. of Catherine & Niagara River Rd.
Prop. Patrick Radican. Sold to George Lewis; called Lewis House.
1900: converted to private dwelling by Dunham family.

1962 purchased by Mario Rossi for bake shop. 1971 completely remodelled. nothing remaining of original building: Ontario Bakery.

1860's. Frontier House: situated on the south side of the Lewis House.
No doubt dating from the middle 1800's. In 1870 it was known as 'Magwoods', but nicknamed "Magwood's Sunday School". It was later called The Commercial House, owned and operated in the early 1900's by Harry Hawkins. Many years later a private home, and an apartment. Building caught fire Aug. 3rd. 1971. It was demolished three weeks later.

1850's Circa. The Ferry House: Very little is known of this Inn, except that it stood for a number of years on a plot of ground that jutted out into the river, in front of the Lewis House. It was also the landing place for the lower ferry, and the Customs House stood on the same site. This land has long been hidden by the waters of the Niagara River. It's proprietor was Samuel Couthard.

1880's Circa. This was a very small two story and a half frame building that stood on the west side of the Niagara River road in the heart of the village of Fort Erie, just opposite the upper ferry landing. Just before the turn of the Century Fred Spain left his hotel on Courtwright St. and became proprietor here. In 1900 Samuel Ramey moved to town and took over from Mr. Spain. In 1904 he had the Cottage Hotel moved back on the lot, and began the construction of the King Edward Hotel in front. It opened for business in 1905, and a year later Sam sold to his brother Ed. The old cottage Hotel now serves for the kitchen of the King Edward, thus giving a true idea of it's original size.

THE PICKWICK ARMS. This large brick hotel was built for the company of Ditchburn and Post. It offered three and five room sweets and batchelor apartments. It stood on the S.W. cr. of King and the Garrison. It was operated by Mr. Cervais, and shortly after its opening renamed the Pickwick arms. It was a luxury hotel for that day. Along with the rooms, the guests were provided with a coffee shop, writing room curiosity shop, and lounge. Each room was provide with a telephone, baths with hot and cold water, a telegraph service in the building, and a laundry room, and valet service were also provided. A large addition to the back was added in 1930. Mr. Cervais left for Montreal and William Robinson took over. By 1935 the place was called Mather Arms, and many years later known as the Fort Erie Hotel. In 1976 Sal Cirillo took over the ownership and it was given the name Port of Entry. It was burnt to the ground Nov. 27. 1977.

LYNHAVEN The Lynhaven was originally built as a home. In NIAGARA Blvd. 1928 it was turned into a dining room and Cr. Catherine. boarding house, by Mr. E.B. Havens. In 1927 the business was taken over by the Wong family, the brother of Skippy and Kee Wong, who the townsfolk called Wong Kee. He brought his wife May into the business on their marriage in 1930. After the death of Wong Kee in 1953 she took over the operation of the Hotel. After the war, most of the upstairs rooms were turned into private dining areas and the place was then known as Niagara Tavern. In 1980 May retired to Hamilton and the property was sold to the owner of the Ontario Bakery, Mario Rossi for use as a parking lot. On July the second the building was completely demolished.

TAVERNS & BOARDING HOUSE NOT REMAINING:::

Fishermans Rest::: Built by George Nettle in 1830 this tavern Niagara Blvd. remained in operation till 1897, when it was demolished. It stood on the river road not far from Frenchman's Creek. It was a large stone place 200 ft.
by twenty five, with a large veranda running across the front.

FERRY HOUSE Built in the 1860's this small tavern stood on the NIAGARA & Bowen. South East cr. of Bowen and the Niagara River rd.
Bowen at thst time was called Ferry st, although the boats that left for Black Rock in the U.S.A. were near rowboats. At this time the business was operated by Joseph Stevens. This is no doubt the same tavern run by Joe Lanigan, who had his licence in 1875.

Buck's Tavern. From the 1850's & 60's. This place stood on the south side of Bowen road , south of Ridgemount Hotel. It was destroyed by fire.

RIDGEMOUNT Hotel: Built 1870's circa . A rather small place of brick Bowen Rd. N.S. with a veranda running across the front and opening to the second floor. It stood on the North east side of Bowen and Ridgemount roads. Beside it was a large ice house. The building was taken down in 1925., as property bought by Ben Spear. Opt. B Willi ck 1915:

Half Way House Built by Jake Lee 1860's N.E. cr. of Nigh and Bertie Township Windmill point rd. East. It was a large frame building with a verada that extended across the front. There was a general store and a post office nearby. The upstairs contained the usual ballroom.
After Jake left the business, his two sons operated for a time. In May 1902 the buiness was sold by William Huffman to Edward Joseph Hawkins. He operat it for a time then moving to the Stevensville Hotel
He sold to Charlie Hawkins and it burnt to the grou in 1914. A cement block homestead was built in it's place; however both are long gone.

FREEBURY HOTEL Built before Fennian Raids, at Freebury's Landing foot of Bowen Road.

Riverview

W. side Erie St.

The building that housed the Riverview boarding home was one of the earliest in Fort Erie facing the Mill Stream that flowed into Kerby's Red Mill. When David Paulus married to Lititia Sabine he was given this home by his father, in 1883. When he took permanently ill in 1925 Lititia turned the old home into the Riverview boarding house. It was a large two story frame house built in 1819. It had fourteen rooms, and had a fire place in all but three of the rooms. It had eight bedrooms in all, a library, living room, dining room, kitchen and bath room. Out back it had a carpentry shop, for Davids use. When the Peace Bridge was under construction, this old homestead was too old to be moved, and instead was demolished in 1926.

THE GLOBE

THE INTERNATIONAL Bridge St.

before the 1900's operated by Finlayson.
renamed The New Waldorf : The International
This large two story frame building stood on Bridge
St. just a roadway from the old C.N.R. railway Station. It was no doubt built in the middle 1870's when the International Bridge went up, and always looked it's age. Between 1915 and 1922 it was operated by a William Dunn. The property was bought by the owners of the Mentholetum Company and it was demolished in the late 20's.
In 1915 before Dunn's called New Waldorf.

The John T. James boarding house.

Built around the time that the International bridge went up. It stood on the north side of Courtwright facing the railroad tracks, some distance above Central Ave.
It was burnt by fire, as was the usual fate of these establishments.

VICTORIA, HOTEL
THE FLAT TOP HOTEL
N.S. of Upper Jarvis
Bridgeburg

Built in 1878 by [unclear] establishment stood on the north side facing the railroad tracks just up from Crooks St. The ground floor held a large kitchen, a dining room and two rooms for the owners.
Upstairs was a large undivided room, where the railroad men would sleep in between runs. There were no beds, and the mattresses were placed directly on the floor. Ed moved to the south end and his son Edward Joseph took over. It then went to an old railroad employee, a Mr. Lamb.
His wife Pattie ran the place. In the 1920's it was damaged by fire, however was rebuilt.
Left empty for a number of years after Mr. Lamb moved, it was finally taken down in the 1930's.

SMUGGLER'S HOME::: Apr. 20, 1833 Thomas Silverthorne to George Huff

SMUGGLER'S HOME::: N. w. Cr. of Limestone Ridge and the Garrison.

1830's...

Dec. 9, 1854 Jacob Fulmer sold this corner lot to Michael Huffman the son of Nicholas.

It had been owned by George Huffman in 1833.
however there is no record of a tavern at that time.

It existed during the Fennian Raids for it is well marked on the Military maps of the time.

Queen's Hotel
Ridge Rd. W.S.
Ridgeway.

1870's THOMAS
CREESE

Built in 1877 this large three story frame building with front veranda, stood on the south side of the railroad tracks, just across the road from the station. It owner and manager in the early 1900's was A. White. It was a center for commercial travellers, who often rented a room there and displayed their wares in the sample room on the south side. It was greatly remodelled by Mr. White in 1927. The name continued down through the years, till it was demolished in 1965. In the early 1970's Brewers Warehouse was built on the site

The Ontario Hotel
Erie St.
Crystal Beach.

When first in operation it shared bu<sup>ing</sup>
with a grocery store.
In 1979 Ted Kassay purchased the ol<sup>nt.</sup>
Hotel and converted it into the B<sup>lan</sup> Specialt<sup>y</sup> Village, housing a number of smal<sup>l</sup> shops. Hotel was closed, and th<sup>w</sup> buaine<sup>s</sup> failed.

THE ERIE BEACH HOTEL: Built in 1905, this large rambling building Erie Beach. boasted a tower at one end and an open veranda where the guests could sit to watch the boats coming and going from the Erie Beach Dock. It operated after the Beach closed, however in Sept. 1935 it was destroyed by fire, and never rebuilt.

ROYAL HOTEL
Crystal Beach Park

Originally built as the Assembly House to house visitors to the evangelist meetings then held at Crystal Beach. This venture lasted only one year. One of the noted speakers was Sam Jones. The builder was Dr. Thomas Snyder, who was also an evangelist preacher. It was a large L shaped frame building and faced Derby road. It met new life as the Royal Hotel, however it met the fate of many of the others when it was destroyed by fire 1923.

The Lakeside INN: west side of Lakeshore Rd., 3 mile from Ferry Landing Built for tourists visiting Erie Beach which was only a ten miles walk away. Accomodation for sixty, meals served, but no liquor when opened.

HOTEL::: still standing as residence.

WILLSON'S INN.
RIDGE RD. CR.
NIGH.

This large two story frame building was built circa 1850's as an Inn. It stood on the cross-roads and the Nigh was a most travelled road at the time. The building was used as a half way house and the post office was here from many of it's earliest years. It became the home of the Willosn family, and eventually was used for many purposes and most recently as a Antique Store.

SHIELDS HOTEL
West Main St.
Stevensville

prop. 1876
John F. Gray

This place of business stood on the north side of West Main St. just up from the corner lot. It got it's licence in 1878 as the Stevensville Hotel owned and operated by Robert Hutcheon. The following year when he applied for his licence he called it Shields. In 1884 he had a large two story brick place built on the corner and opened it as the Hutcheon House.

The National Hotel
East Main St.
Stevensville

This hotel a rather small frame building stood on the north side of East Main , four buildings down from the Cr. of Stevensville road.

It was run by John Romance, who was living there sometime before 1883. He leased the hotel to John Mc. Intosh of Fort Erie in 1898. He could not have had it too long for in 1901 the papers recorded that William Mc. Cleary had converted the old National, served meals and had a license to sell drinks. Perhaps Romance had the place only as boarding house and dining room.

Mr. J. Romance left this location for a Spot on the south side of Town Line now Willicks Store.

TAVERN & BOARDING HOUSE : still standing --

Winte mute's            early 1800's

Niagara Blvd.

Fort Erie.    Grant of land to Abraham Wintemute 1799. House built shortly after. Mary Wintemute kept a tavern here a number of years. Travellers crossing the ferry at Black Rock stopped at Wintemute's tavern before heading to the Falls. The home passed down to Helen Warren Lewis and her husband in 1912, and out of family in the late 60's. It has been for many years a private residence.

THE NEW SHERMAN
NIAGARA BLVD.
CR. OF DUFFERIN.

This large two story frame boarding house stood on the N.E. cr. of the river road and Dufferin. For many years the Ferry landing operated just in front of this establishment. Built shortly after the founding of Victoria (the north end) in 1873, it was owned and operated by Nellie Sherman. In 1901, Mr. Michael was the operator and in 1890 Mr. Norse. For many years it has been used as an apartment building.

BERTIE-HOTEL: John Crabb an Englishman purchased the old Forsyth home on the north east cr. of Phipps and the Niagara River road in 1874. He defaulted in 1892 and the property went to G. Barrett as a home.

Palmer's Inn            early    1827. LEWIS PALMER.
Garrison Rd.
S.E. cr. Krafft
Fort Erie.

HOTELS IN GREATER FORT ERIE::: built after 1900.

The Royal Hotel:
Jarvis & Niagara Blvd.

This large two story brick building was built in 1906 for Samuel Johnston. It had a large veranda running across the front, which afforded a good view of the Niagara River in front. In 1909 it was purchased by Mrs. Fritz of Black Rock. After her death in 1929 it was taken over by her daughter Verna Uster. She operated the Hotel till 1946 when it was sold to Peter Stanek & John Dymon. In 1956 it went to Mollie and Clarence Hyslop and has had many other owners. It changed little through the years except for the closing in of the open veranda for added dining space. It was remodelled again in 1982 and a complete overhaul in 1983 with the help of a need program. Barn boards now cover the lower half of the hotel with white siding of aluminum on the upper floor. All ground widows have been eliminated, for the hotel is now providing strip shows nightly.

Once more the hotel has been renamed:::
1983::: called The Stage Door.

THE KING EDWARD.
NIAGARA BLVD. South end.

This large two story brick hotel was built in 1904 for Samuel Ramey. It went into operation in 1905. It had a large veranda across the front that could be reached from the upper floor. One could get a good view of the Niagsra river and the ferry boats coming and leaving the ferry landing which was just in front. Mr. Sam Ramey left the business selling the hotel to his brother Ed. When he opened it was one of the finest from here to the Falls. The open veranda was removed many years ago, and although there has been several changes inside, it is nothing of it's former glory. It was purchased by the Mayor of Port Colborne, and became Fort Erie's first bar to present nude girlie

WAVERLY HOTEL::: Built as a home around the turn of the Century, HELENA ST. it was not used as a boarding house till after WAVERLY BEACH. the closing of Erie Beach and the burning of the old Erie Beach Hotel in 1935.

It was purchased by Mr. & Mrs. A. Banatti in the late 1950's at at that time they got a licence to serve drinks.

THE GARRISON INN.
CENTRAL AVE.

In Aug. 1973 the Garrison Motor Inns Ltd. began the construction of a $5 million hotel complex overlooking the river and lake by the entrance to the Peace Bridge. It is to be built in three stages. When the first is completed it will consist of 74 guest rooms, a dining room seating 160, a entertainment room holding 200, a banquet room to seat 150, and other areas such as a heated swimming pool. To make way for the site, meant the removal of the old Riverview apartments on Goderich St. and along with them several houses that remained on the west side of Goderich. Also demolished was the Yuhas Motel that stood on the S.E. cr. of the Garrison and Central Ave. It was called the Peace Bridge Motel. The Garrison opened in Sept. 1974 officially Oct. 31st. 1974. An expansion got underway in Feb. 1976, and a new manager was appointed. In Dec. 1976 the Motor Inn announced that it would be closing because it was heavily in debt. In due time new owners were found and the Motel was again in operation, in 1978.
