

John Palmer who landed with the refugees from the U.S.A. , came to Canada with his four sons, John William Henry & Jacob, and his wife Matilda Everett whom he married in Pennsylvania.

He was given a Grant of 100 acres from the Crown on the N. River. The Palmer house was located on the river road between Millers Bay and Black Creek. It was a large building containing 35 bedrooms. It was built of solid logs obtained from the adjacent country, and surfaced with stout clapboards. It had a large terrace or verandah upstairs, that faced the river. It's bar was famous for it's elderberry & grape wines; a Palmer product that it served exclusively. On the farm was a large swamp called Palmer's marsh, which was about 40 acres in extent.

In 1812 General Drummond had his headquarters at Palmer House. In 1813 the hostillery was the headquarters of the Canadian Militia. The building was raised in 1885.
